Critical Hazard Analysis Tool (C.H.A.T.)

Drone

€$500 (Expensive)

PRIVATIZED BY [REDACTED]

A Drone with a malfunctioning framework for interpreting data from Control Nodes. It follows within 50m/yds of Linked Bracelets, but it does not respond to commands- instead it randomly boots subroutines caught in its queue. Extra Bracelets are €$20(Everyday).

The C.H.A.T. comes with a portable 3 Floor NET Architecture that can be expanded to 6 Floors. Regardless of the installed Demon, the drone will always act on its subroutine queue and have a Combat Number of 8 due to its malfunctioning framework. This Drone cannot be controlled by a linked Agent and requires a Demon to function.

This Drone can be Tech Upgraded to install a single One-Handed Weapon and install any one type of Armorjack Armor, though it comes stock with neither. This Drone uses a Skill Number for all non-combat rolls.

- Distraction Subroutine: Drone will become stationary and begin screaming, drawing in NPCs within 10m/yd for 30 seconds.
- Overclock Subroutine: Drone's Combat & Skill Numbers are doubled for 60 seconds (20 rounds). After the Subroutine deactivates so does the drone; someone with a Linked Bracelet must spend 3 Seconds (1 action) to reactivate it.

- Vocal Subroutine: Drone will loudly vocalize something.

Det-Foam

Gear

€$500 (Expensive)

A four chamber spray can that is filled with a liquid explosive, an activation compound, and two separate parts of an AB Foam. When sprayed, all 4 parts of the compound combine to create a sticky foam that explodes if ignited.

DetFoam can be sprayed once on a 2m/yd by 2m/yd (1 square) section of cover and can be sprayed 10 times before the can is empty. It can be sprayed along your path during your Move Action as your 1 Action; adjacent applications of Det-Foam are considered to be connected.

Det-Foam will not detonate unless fully cured, which takes 30 seconds (10 rounds). Detonation requires the use of an external ignition source such as an open flame, a bullet, or a supplementary explosion.

When using a held ignition source, the Det-Foam requires a DV11 Demolitions Skill Check from within 2m/yd by 2m/yd (1 square) of the foam. If using a ranged weapon, refer to that weapon's range table to determine the ignition DV; bullets and explosions simply need to hit the foam to ignite it.

Upon detonation, the 2m/yd by 2m/yd section of cover to which the Det-Foam was applied, along with any sections covered with connected Det-Foam, takes 6d6 damage. Only the 2m/yd by 2m/yd applications of the Det-Foam take damage in this way.

Kiss-Kiss Cigarettes (x10)

Gear

€$20 (Everyday)

A high-quality soft pack of good old fashioned cancer sticks. Smoke them one at a time, the effect does not stack.

Primary Effect (1 Hour)

For the duration of the primary effect the user feels incredibly level-headed. In game terms, this gives the user +2 to the following skills: Concentration, Deduction, Gamble, Library Search, and Trading.

Secondary Effect (DV15)

If the user wasn't already addicted to Kiss-Kiss cigarettes, they are now. While addicted, the user feels irritable and unfocused; they have -2 to the following skills: Athletics, Concentration, Deduction, Gamble, Library Search, and Trading.

While addicted to Kiss-Kiss Cigarettes, the GM will occasionally tell you when you crave a Cigarette, and you should do your best to roleplay accordingly.

Rocklin Augmentics Big-Bang

Internal Cyberware (Clinic)

€$500 (Expensive)

A bomb buried inside you, rigged to blow on a trigger. Rocklin Augmentics created these to help Corps enforce the agreements surrounding Cyberware Grants, putting the trigger in their hands.

Since the Big-Bang made it onto the illicit markets, human traffickers have been using them to keep their product cooperative. Even more reckless, gangers have been hooking them up to their Biomonitors to trigger when they flatline, hoping to get the last laugh in the event of their inevitable demise.

This is treated as a very messy standard grenade round, the center being located at the body of the user of the Big-Bang. If they were alive when the Big-Bang was triggered, they are now making deathsaves.

SuperChrome™ Dual-Disk Speedloader

Exotic Cyberarm/Cyberdeck

€$2000 (Very Expensive)

Requires Neural Link

The SuperChrome™ Dual-Disk Speedloader is an Exotic Cyberarm with a Popup Integrated Cyberdeck that only pops up when a user is Jacked In. Its overclocked framework allows the user to unload and load a program with just 1 Meat Action (sacrificing any Net Actions that round). The Cyberdeck has 4 Program Slots and does not natively support Hardware Upgrades. When in use, the user is considered fully connected to the Cyberdeck and it gains the benefits of any hardware upgrades installed in a Bodyweight (or similar) Suit.

The user can only be connected to one Cyberdeck at a time. If you are playing with Neuroports, this Cyberarm can link its Cyberdeck to the user's Neuroport Cyberdeck Port only if the Port is otherwise unoccupied. Any Cyberdeck installed in a Neuroport Cyberdeck Port is considered a higher priority Cyberdeck when you Jack In and the Dual-Disk will not pop up.

This Cyberarm has no Option Slots and cannot replace its SuperChrome™ Cyberhand. When exposed, this Cyberarm grants a +2 to Wardrobe/Style checks.

The MacReady Brand Deep Cleaner

Exotic Shotgun

€$1000 (Very Expensive)

An Exotic Shotgun that is fired with the Heavy Weapons Skill. Mechanically, the MacReady Brand Deep Cleaner (MRBDC) is a Shotgun that is only capable of firing in the Shell alt-fire mode. This weapon cannot be modified to support attachments or special ammunition. It cannot critically injure or make aimed shots.

Originally used for disinfecting crime scenes back in the 2010s, The MRBDC has made a resurgence in Night City's Combat Zones after the schematic was recently uploaded to the DataPool by a nameless Tech. The MRBDC features a liquid-reservoir, engineered for firing 2 large bursts of an alcohol-based sanitizing fluid that is no longer produced. The reservoir is, however, compatible with alcohol-based CHOOH^2 that can be found everywhere. Theoretically, it can even load CHOOH^2 mixed with TR-4 DetonationFluid.

When filled only with CHOOH^2 (20eb per fill), The MRBDC does no damage and douses everything within its range in flammable liquid. When ignited, the fire in the affected area burns for 60 seconds (20 rounds) and will ignite anything that comes into contact with it. Targets ignited this way take 4 damage direct to their HP at the end of every turn until they spend an action to put themselves out.

When filled with CHOOH^2 and TR-4 Detonation Fluid, the MRBDC does 3d6 damage to targets and immediately ignites the entire affected area. The fire in the affected area burns for 60 seconds (20 rounds) and will ignite anything that comes into contact with it. Targets ignited this way take 6 damage direct to their HP at the end of every turn until they spend an action to put themselves out.

Fire created by this weapon does not spread. You cannot load TR-4 into a half-filled tank without breaking the weapon beyond repair.

Damage: 0d6 / 3d6

Weapon Skill: Heavy Weapons

Concealable: No

Hands Required: 2

ROF: 1

Ammo Types: CHOOH^2 , CHOOH^2 + TR-4

Magazine Size: 2

Zhirafa Auto-Ties

Gear

€$500 (Expensive)

A mechanical ziptie made of carbon fiber that closes slowly on a 6 second timer once the end is inserted into the mechanism and pulled. Used to hold scaffold together, the pressure inhibitor is set high enough to cut through meat and bone with ease as the tie closes- something the workers of Zhirafa (and the gangs of Night City) knowall too well.

If a Zhirafa Auto-Tie is attached to you, it will fully close within 6 seconds (2 rounds), severing whatever it is tied around. Yes, they are wide enough to fit aroundyour neck.

Attaching one to an unwilling party follows the same rules as a grapple. If the grapple succeeds, the Auto-Tie is attached to the defender in a location of the GMs discretion. The resulting dismemberment follows the Effect of the closest appropriate Critical Injury. The involved parties are not considered in a grapple after this check. To attach this to a specific area of the body, you must make an aimed shot (-8) on your grapple; the additional benefits of this aimed shot are decided by theGM.

If the grapple fails, the tie closes around nothing and is wasted. If the grapple results in a Critical Failure by the attacker, it attaches to them in a location ofthe GMs choice.

Removing one that is attached to you requires a DV11 Basic Tech Skill Check and a Tech Tool. The tie can also be broken with Body 8 or higher.
